Dave Brubeck Quartet Sets Camino Date

Appearing at El Camino College Oct. 30 will be the Dave Brubeck Quartet, which will perform in the semesterly student body-sponsored "Jazz Concert" at 8:30 p.m.

An internationally known figure in the musical world, Brubeck began his musical career by playing with local bands in Ione, Calif. He continued his pursuit of music by attending the College of the Pacific as a music major.

The Dave Brubeck Octet, a group which formed the basis for the quartet, was organized in 1949. When Paul Desmond joined the musicians in 1951, the now renowned Dave Brubeck Quartet was formed.

STARTING WITH tours to the entertainment centers of the United States, Brubeck's group has now gone on tours on a world-wide level.

Last year the group played in most areas of Europe and in the Middle East while on tour for four months. The trip took the musicians behind the iron curtain.

Brubeck is reaching more and more of the public and in particular a greater number of college groups. He is continually in demand to play at music festivals and at college concerts.

BRUBECK IS probably known best for his contemporary rendition of the modern type jazz. He induces almost an emotional mood in his music.

Some of Brubeck's recent best selling records are "Jazz

Park Superintendent Tells of Threats to Area's Elm Trees

A serious threat to the elm trees of Torrance and Southern California was disclosed recently at a meeting of the Street Tree Seminar, it was reported here yesterday by C. W. Clemmer, park superintendent for the city.

The threat comes in the form of the small European elm bark beetle (Scolytus multistriatus), Clemmer said. The beetle is a tiny insect, about one-eighth of an inch in length, that attacks the inner bark of elm trees and may kill an apparently healthy tree in four to five months.

THE ADULT female beetle drills into the bark and lays eggs, and upon hatching, the larvae radiate outward, eating the inner bark of the tree. Considerable damage throughout the Southland has been found, although factual information about the beetle in the area is scanty, the tree experts were told.

THE STREET Tree Seminar, an organization made up of street tree supervisors of the Los Angeles basin, made several recommendations after the discussions on the subject:

1. Maintain the health and vigor of your trees. A healthy tree is not as apt to be attacked. Thorough watering is essential. Soak the root-zone of your tree to a depth of 3 to 4 feet once every 3 or 4 weeks, except during the rainy season. This is essential even though your tree appears to have sufficient moisture.

2. Examine the trunk and larger limbs of your trees frequently. The first evidence of beetles may be small pin-holes in the bark of your tree. Adult beetles are active from May through November or possibly December.

3. If you have a beetle problem contact a qualified agency, such as a pest control operator, park department or tree department. Timely observation and control measures can save your elm tree.

4. Destroy all dead, dying, or infested elm trees. Dispose of all elm wood in such a manner as to kill all beetles in the wood and prevent future infestations.

THE SMALLER European elm bark beetle has been instrumental in killing thousands of elm trees throughout the East and Midwest.
